TERRIBLE MOTOR SMASH.

FOUR KILLED AT ELSTREE.

Foreign Tourists in Blazing Car.

London, June 28.
Four persons—two men and two women—were burned to death this afternoon in a terrible motor-car accident near Elstree, the centre of the British talking-picture industry. Four others were dragged from the wreckage badly injured.
Two motor-cars collided with a terrific crash, and one of them immediately burst into flames, the wreckage rapidly being converted into a raging inferno.
One of the victims was so burned as to be unidentifiable.
One of the dead men is believed to be an American tourist, his name being given as Milton Green, of New York.
Of the four injured victims, three were women. The man who escaped with his life is a Japanese, Tokichiro Gomu, who is a visitor to England having from Tokyo.—Reuter.

"LONG FIRM" FRAUD ALLEGED.

POLICE SEARCH FOR THREE MEN.

The police are looking for a number of men concerned, it is alleged, in a "long firm" fraud. Recently, a firm was started at No. 21, Gilman's Bazaar, its business ostensibly being to deal in imports and exports, with electric goods as its special line of business.
The new firm, opened under the style of the "Yau Cheong", contracted for the purchase of over $600 worth of goods from the Kwong Fook Electric Batteries Company, of 320, Des Voeux Road West, and also two lots of electric torches, valued altogether at over $1,100, from the Star Co., of 55, Canal Street West. The goods were duly supplied, but when payment became due, during the week-end, it was discovered that the "Yau Cheong" had moved out.
Three men are believed to have been concerned in the alleged fraud, and their whereabouts are at present being investigated.

THE MORATORIUM OFFER.

FRENCH APPROACH TO GERMANY.

AIR OF OPTIMISM.

Optimism now prevails regarding the French attitude to President Hoover's war debts moratorium offer and it is believed that a speedy agreement on the main issue in dispute will be reached.

Mr. Andrew Mellon, the secretary of the U.S. Treasury Department, who has been America's chief representative in the negotiations in Paris, has despatched a report on the result of his discussions with the leading French Ministers to President Hoover, in whose hands it now rests.

Replies To-day.

The President's reply ought to be in the hands of Mr. Mellon before the conversations are resumed to-morrow (Monday).

M. Laval, the French Prime Minister, through the German Ambassador, has asked Berlin to give assurances that the Frs. 10,500,000,000 (the amount to which Germany will benefit under the Hoover proposals) will be devoted strictly to economic ends, and that there will be no more sabre-rattling in Germany.

M. Laval has also asked Germany sincerely to endeavour to co-operate with France in the interests of European peace.

The German reply to the French request is also expected to-morrow.—Reuter.

POST AND GATTY HELD UP.

STORM AND ENGINE TROUBLE.

Harbin, June 29.
Post and Gatty worked throughout the night at Habarovsk repairing the engine of their machine, which they found had developed trouble.

The repairs are completed, but owing to adverse reports on the weather conditions in the Northern Pacific, the aviators are awaiting signs of a clearance.

The airman hope, nevertheless, to take off again some time during to-day.—Reuter.

Major Franco.

SECRET OF REVOLT AT TABLADA.

PLANS FOR SOVIET REPUBLIC.

VIRTUAL ARREST OF MAJOR FRANCO.

BOMBING THREAT.

Madrid, June 28.

The dramatic developments at Tablada have had a sequel in the virtual arrest of Major Franco, the famous airman and the leader of a series of aerial revolts against the Monarchist regime.

The arrest has not yet been carried into effect as Major Franco is lying ill in a sick-room, but the Republican Civil Guards have posted men on guard, and it is certain that he will be taken into custody as soon as he has recovered.

It is officially stated that Major Franco's supporters—including officers from aerodromes all over Spain—secured six hundred hand grenades and a number of aerial bombs from the Government stores at Seville, on the pretext that they intended to make experiments therewith in Morocco.

Immediately the plans for the revolt were completed, Major Franco announced that if his plans were interfered with Seville would be bombed from the air, and that the fliers would concentrate particularly upon the banks, Government offices, military barracks and convents.

The Government, however, had been forewarned of the programme, and were able to nip the plot in the bud.

The most sensational feature of the official revelations is that the revolt at Tablada aimed at the proclamation of a Soviet Republic in Andalusia!

Martial law has been declared, and the situation is now well under control.

GENERAL ELECTION.

A Few Minor Incidents.

Meanwhile, the general election for the Cortes have been proceeding throughout Spain. The campaign has been generally peaceful hitherto, though minor incidents have occurred in various places.

A Republican-Socialist majority is expected to be returned, in Madrid to-night, but the national results will not be tabulated for a day or so.—Reuter.

Government Victory.

Madrid, Later.

The early election returns indicate that there will be a Republican-Socialist coalition, such as that on which the Provisional Government is based. These parties have won the day though no official figures are available.

Barcelona, June 29.
The Marcial Party has won forty-two of fifty-three seats allotted to Catalonia in the new Cortes.

Immense enthusiasm has been shown throughout Catalonia and it is possible that a separate Republic may be proclaimed. Troubles are feared.

The airman Franco has not returned either to Barcelona or to Seville.

Five people have been killed in CLOSING STAGES OF YAUMATI MURDER TRIAL.

Crown and Defence Speeches.

THE EVIDENCE OF DR. UTTLEY.

The closing stages of the Yaumati murder trial were entered upon at the Criminal Sessions this morning, before the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kemp) when counsel made their final addresses.

Mr. Fitzroy, for the Crown, urged the jury to accept the evidence and opinion of Dr. Uttley as to the cause of death, while Mr. Jenkin, argued that the evidence had no weight at all.

To-day was the fifth of the trial which concerns Wong Cheung, alias Wong Sik-cheung, who is charged with the murder of Kau Shuk at Yaumati, on April 1.

Addressing the jury for the Crown, Mr. Fitzroy said it was not a case where two medical men expressed different opinions. They had only one doctor and one set of medical evidence in front of them. Counsel received this evidence, saying that when Mr. Uttley made the post mortem examination he had no doubt in his mind that death was due to strangulation. At the end of a close cross-examination he held the same opinion with no doubt in his mind.

Not a Natural Death.

To the suggestion that the man might have died of concussion, Dr. Uttley had said in that case the lungs would have collapsed, would not have been congested as in the present case.

The jury also had to remember that the conditions found in the body would not have been present had the man died a natural death. Would the jury be prepared to put their own opinion before that of a medical man, and say that the doctor was not capable of judging? Were they going to say that they knew more than the doctor?

Medical Evidence.

Mr. Fitzroy agreed it would be impossible for another medical man to say, from the short notes Dr. Uttley made, what did happen, or offer any other opinion. Was there, however, any disease present which could have caused the man's death? There was none, and he (counsel) would ask the jury to accept the medical evidence given by a qualified doctor, and accept his opinion of strangulation as the cause of death.

Counsel went on to deal with the evidence of witnesses, concerning the fight and prisoner having put something round deceased's neck, and reminded them prisoner had said they bore no animosity to each other and Crown witnesses had said not what they saw but what they surmised.

Public and Murder Trials.

In associating himself with the Chief Justice's directions to the jury at the close of the sitting on Friday—that they were to refrain from discussing the matter with anybody but themselves—Mr. Jenkin said he had found that a murder case seemed to what the reading public's appetite more than any other item of news. He continued that he had been practising at the Bar for over 20 years, in the course of which he had met people who formed conclusions from what they read in newspapers.

Newspaper reports were, of necessity, abridged and the only people qualified to give a decision were those who had been in Court and had seen the witnesses giving evidence. During the currency of the case, Mr. Jenkin said he had heard people make the most extraordinary observations as to their convictions.

Doctor Criticised.

With regard to Dr. Uttley, counsel said that if he appeared to be no personal aspect of it. In Court they did not care who or what a man was in private life or practice. They were entitled to examine his conduct and opinions with the highest degree of doubt that the evidence and circumstances warranted. He would put it to them later that Dr. Uttley's

GLOUCESTER BUILDING PROGRESS.

Gloucester Building, occupying one of the Colony's finest business sites, is rapidly nearing completion, work having just commenced on the tower, the top of which is 186 feet from the ground. Several shops opened for business on the ground floor for the first time to-day.

Service Flats in New Building.

READY AT END OF THE YEAR.

Gloucester Building bids fair to rank as Hongkong's finest business building. The impressive block will be finally completed, it is anticipated, at the end of the year, the final stages of construction being marked by the commencement of work on the fifty-feet clock-tower surmounting the main structure.

Over 4,700 tons of steel have been employed in the framework and thousands of tons of cement and bricks in adorning the steel skeleton, some of the vertical stair-ways being required to support a weight of 850 tons.

From pavement to the top of the tower, which will contain a huge water-tank as well as a clock, it is 186 feet, while the main structure is 135 feet high.

Service Flats.

In an interview with a representative of the Land Investment Company, owners of the building, this morning, the Telegraph learned that four upper floors are to be entirely devoted to residential purposes—single rooms, each with bathroom—the facility of a service restaurant being provided at the top.

The ground and mezzanine floors will be composed of shops and work-rooms, and the first, second and third floors will be let out as offices.

Two gearless lifts—the first of the type to be installed in Hongkong—will serve the upper storeys at a speed of 450 feet a minute, more than five miles an hour.

Shopping Centre.

The shops on the Pedder Street side of the building have been occupied in the last two or three days, or will be occupied this week. Those on the Des Voeux Road side will be ready for occupation on August 1 and the arcade shops on September 1. The rest of the building will be made available from time to time as the year progresses.

Messrs. Sonnet Freres, Colonial Dispensary, The Little Shop (from Shanghai), Canadian National Railways and Madamame Chiffon are occupying the Pedder Street shops; the Queen's Dispensary, Schmidt and Co., Wan Koo (curios) and the Swatow Trading Company will be found in the Des Voeux Road premises, and in the Arcade will be found Messrs. Hwamer and Company, the Jade Tree Inc., N. Lazarus, T. Nakao and Co., Eve Caravan (curios), China Phonograph Company, and C. N. Brown

FRENCH "RED" GIVEN STIFF SENTENCE.

SINGAPORE TRIAL CONCLUDED.

FOREIGN OFFICE BAN EVADED.

H.K. CONNEXIONS.

One of the most startling political trials in the history of Singapore was concluded last week with the conviction of Joseph Ducroux, a Frenchman who came under the notice of the British Foreign Office as early as 1923 while in France. He was sentenced to eighteen months' rigorous imprisonment.

In spite of a world-wide circular issued by the Foreign Office to prevent Ducroux from getting a passport, and particularly from reaching India, he succeeded in obtaining one under the assumed name of Serge Lefranc, and left France. He visited Shanghai and Hongkong and arrived in Singapore in April this year.

Ducroux had been there only about three weeks when his presence became known to the Singapore Criminal Intelligence Department, and official brains were pitted against those of the Frenchman. Ducroux opened an office at Winchester House, Collyer Quay, in the heart of Singapore's business quarter, and furnished it with the usual equipment. His sole employee was an Indian peon who only worked until 12 noon—about the time Ducroux left his office for lunch.

Mr. R. H. Onraet, Director of Criminal Intelligence, engaged an office in Winchester House, opposite to that of Ducroux and men were detailed to watch the movements and visitors of the Frenchman. Daily reports were regularly received as well as information from the sweeping from Ducroux's office. His letters were intercepted and found to be partly in French and partly in cipher, some being sent to addresses in Shanghai and Hongkong and others to France. Ducroux claimed to be the travelling representative for a Paris firm of hardware manufacturers.

On the afternoon of June 1 the stage was set for a lightning round-up of the Frenchman, two Chinese visitors, and a number of other Chinese suspects living in various parts of the town. Mr. Onraet himself burst into the offices of Ducroux and his two visitors, one a Hupoh Chinese and the other a returned political Exhibition Fire Disaster.

Dutch Pavilion Destroyed.

Priceless Art Collections.

Immense Loss.

Paris, June 28.
The great French Colonial Exhibition near Paris was the scene to-day of a disastrous fire, which swept through the Dutch Pavilion and caused damage which is estimated at nearly fifty million francs.

Some of the most famous paintings in the world are believed to have been engulfed in the flames, accounting for a great proportion of the heavy loss.

The entire buildings of the Dutch Pavilion were destroyed in the fire, which was caused, it is believed, by a short circuit in the electric wiring.

Copy of Famous Pagoda.

The Dutch Pavilion was a copy of the famous Sumatra Pagoda and for the purposes of the French Colonial Exhibition, it contained a priceless art collection. The Pavilion was only recently officially opened by Queen Wilhelmina in person.

The architect of the building had tears in his eyes as he witnessed the calamity. Princess Juliana who is Crown Princess of Holland, and the wife of the Dutch Minister in Paris visited the scene while the fire was at its height and were visibly affected.

The fire spread with such rapidity that efforts to save the valuable pictures and other objects d'art in the Pavilion were quickly frustrated.—Reuter.

OIL FROM COAL.

BRITISH SCHEME 'IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The Capetown Burger understands that British interests are responsible for a scheme to build a factory at one of the coal-producing centres in South Africa to manufacture oil from coal, adding that capital of £2,000,000 sterling is already guaranteed.

There is also an understanding that the Government favours the scheme, which will employ 1,000 Europeans immediately. The undertaking, says the Burger, will provide most of the Union's needs of petrol and oil. The promoters are enthusiastic on the subject of tests made in England, which yielded satisfactory results.

SUGAR REFINERY FOR SHANGHAI.

FIVE MILLION DOLLAR CAPITAL.

Shanghai, June 28.

A big sugar refining company, with a capital of $5,000,000, sponsored by Mr. H. H. Kung, the Minister of Industry, and prominent sugar merchants from Cuba, is in process of formation. Mr. Kung is representing the Nanking Government, while the Cuban merchants are known to be representatives of one of the biggest sugar corporations in their country.

When established, the company will open its refinery in Shanghai, with a capacity of at least 1,000 tons a month.

The contract between the Chinese Government and the Cuban merchants governing the formation of the company will be signed in the course of the next few days.

DEATH OF AN AUTHOR.

THE ROMANCE OF MR. J. LAWRENCE MOTT.

An elopement which made a great stir at the time is recalled by the death of Mr. Jordan Lawrence Mott, the American author, at the age of 49, in his camp near Roseburg, Oregon.

Mr. Jordan Mott gave up the prospects of the considerable fortune of his father, a New York iron manufacturer, when he eloped with Mrs. Bowne. His first marriage had proved unhappy, but his attachment to Mrs. Bowne was not looked upon with favour by his father, who employed a newspaper man to pursue the couple in the hope of persuading his son to return to his first wife and children.

The newspaper man missed the eloping couple at Gibraltar by two hours, but followed them with great persistence to Port Said, and then on to Hongkong.

Mr. Jordan Mott refused to accede to the entreaties made on behalf of his father, and thereafter earned his own living as an author, while Mrs. Bowne gave concerts.

In 1928 the couple were married, their respective partners having obtained divorces.

Mr. Mott was for a little while a reporter on the Hongkong Telegraph. He wrote a book "The Ruble and the Yankee Girl." It was intended as a contrast, but gave great offence.

ACROSS SIBERIA.

POST & GATTY MAKE GOOD PROGRESS.

Shanghai, June 28.
Quick progress is being made by the "round-the-world fliers," Gatty and Post, who have arrived at Blagoveshchensk, on the Manchurian-Siberian border, 500 miles from Vladivostok. They landed in a mudhole at 8 p.m., yesterday, Shanghai time, and in spite of the slight mishap, took off for Habarovsk early this morning. After leaving Novosibirsk in the early hours of yesterday morning, the fliers flew straight for Irkutsk, where they arrived at 11.55 p.m., leaving for Blagoveshchensk at 2.10 p.m.—Reuter.

Arrival at Harbarovsk.

Tokyo, June 28.
A Harbin message states that Post and Gatty arrived at Harbarovsk at 2.30 p.m. Shanghai time, and started refuelling immediately for their flight to Nome (Alaska), but have decided to wait to take off at dawn tomorrow.—Reuter.

SUCCESSFUL FETE.

AMBULANCE BRIGADE CENTENARY.

In connexion with the Centenary Celebrations of the Venerable Order of St. John, which are taking place throughout the Empire, a fete was held on Saturday at the Lee Garden by the Hongkong branch of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, by kind permission of Mr. R. Lee.

The fete was in many ways a great success. There were many interesting side shows, which were much enjoyed by the large attendance. The fete opened at 2 p.m., and from then onwards until 7 p.m., Lee Garden was the scene of an animated throng of pleasure seekers, who were not in want of diversions.

Cocoa-nut shies, chutes, aerial railway and "Aunt Sallies" without which no fair is complete, proved very popular among all classes of the community, as was evidenced by the big crowd around each stall.

An excellent golf course was also laid out by Messrs. Lane, Crawford, but strange to say, this was not as successful as was expected. However, those who tried the course found some novel hazards, which were most enjoyable.

In addition to the side shows, a varied programme of both European and Chinese music by amateur artists was given in the theatre of the Garden. The pupils of Miss O'Keefe contributed many items which were much appreciated, while several Hawaiian melodies by Mr. Andrew Chan and his Hawaiian Melodians also came in for their share of applause and a jazz band of young musicians headed by Mr. Abraham rendered two popular numbers.

Those who had been walking the spacious gardens in the hot afternoon, visiting the various stalls, must have found this theatre a cool resting place and thanked the organisers for their foresight for the comfort of visitors.

By kind permission of Commr. E. G. Morris, naval men were in charge of the chutes, see-saws, cocoa-nut shies, "Aunt Sallies" and swings, while civilians also helped to make the fete a success.

In the official programme for the afternoon, the Brigade returned thanks for assistance received from helpers and institutions for donations.

AERIAL PAGEANT.

HUGE CROWD SEES DISPLAY AT HENDON.

London, June 27.

The Royal Air Force display at Hendon today was the twelfth of its kind and attracted an immense crowd, which, in brilliant weather, watched the evolutions of the 200 aircraft participating.

Practically every type of service aeroplane was represented—day and night bombers, interceptors, ordinary fighters, fleet fighters, flying boats and reconnaissance aeroplanes.

The squadron displayed hitherto unequalled precision in formation flying. The new land catapult for heavy aircraft was shown in action during the afternoon. It is capable of catapulting aeroplanes weighing 10 tons into air to a distance of 100 feet. Refuelling in mid air was also demonstrated, but speed was the dominant note of the display. The Duke of Gloucester flew from Farnborough and on arrival at the ground received a Royal Salute from No. 13 Squadron flying at a speed of 250 miles an hour.—British Wireless.

LIBERAL SPLIT INDICATED.

TWO MEMBERS RETIRE TO MARK PROTEST.

London, June 27.

As a culmination of the differences that have existed in the Liberal party on the land tax proposals came the retirement from the party to-day of Sir John Simon and Mr. Ernest Brown. They have formally dissociated themselves from the party in consequence of the party's acceptance of the Government's proposals.

A serious split now faces the Liberal party, for it is reported that in addition to Sir John Simon and Mr. Brown, a number of other members of the party, including Sir Robert Hutchison, have decided to follow their example and sever connexion with the party as a protest against the alliance between Mr. Lloyd George and the Government.

It is expected that the Liberal Chief Whip will be informed to this effect during the week-end.—Reuter.

London, June 27.

To mark the end of the centenary celebrations of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, 7,000 members from brigades drawn throughout the Empire were inspected at Hyde Park by Prince Arthur of Connaught, who deputised for the Prince of Wales. The Prince was unable to attend, owing to his presence at the British Legion conference at Inverness.

Nurses from Hongkong proved a great attraction, dressed in their topees, white frocks, shoes and stockings.—Reuter.

In the meantime they were do-

PUBLIC AUCTION
of the
VALUABLE LEASEHOLD PROPERTY

situate at Kowloon and registered at the Land Office as Kowloon Island Lot No. 1445.

Particulars.
Area—126,000 square feet.
Boundaries—
Northeast—San Shan Road, 350 feet.
Southwest—Ma Hang Chung Road, 350 feet.
Southeast—Pau Chung Street, 360 feet.
Northwest—Pak Tai Street, 360 feet.

N.B.—Pak Tai Street was formerly known as Kowloon City Road and was so named in the Crown Lease plan.

The property lies between and near Ma Tau Wei Road and Kowloon City Road.
A large shed, and other buildings, now used by a monthly tenant for an automobile business, occupy part of the site. Allowing for a 60 ft. street from San Shan Road to Ma Hang Chung Road, and two 6 ft. scavenging lanes, the site is capable of subdivision into 88 house sites, 16' 4" x 69' 6" (end sites 17' 6" x 69' 6"). Such development is given as an example only; same would require removal of the existing buildings.
Term—75 years from 31st January, 1922, with right of renewal for one further term of 75 years.
Crown rent—$724 per annum.
The property will be sold on Thursday the 9th day of July, 1931, at 3 p.m. by Messrs. LAMMERT BROTHERS, Auctioneers, at their Salesroom, No. 4, Duddell Street, Hongkong.

FAMOUS MANSION'S FUTURE.

WILL IT BECOME A CLUB?

Sunderland House, the famous mansion in Curzon-street, Mayfair, formerly the home of Consuelo, Duchess of Marlborough, is again in the market.

The mansion was built by Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt for his daughter Consuelo, who married the Duke of Marlborough in 1895. The prospective purchase price of Sunderland House last year was about £250,000, but it was stated recently by one of the interested parties that "to erect Sunderland House to-day would cost near £450,000."

It is understood that among those who are negotiating for the purchase are representatives of a well-known political club and a dressmaking establishment who would use the existing salons as showrooms and the magnificent ballroom for mannequin parades.

Rooms of Marble.

The mansion, which occupies an island site, is a fine example of the French Renaissance style of architecture. It is built of Portland stone and some of the seven stately reception rooms are entirely of marble. It has 32 bedrooms and six bathrooms.

It is possible that at one end of Curzon-street a new large theatre will be erected. Efforts are being made by the authorities concerned to open up the street at the Park-lane end and give direct access to Park-lane.

At the other end the contemplated development of Lansdowne House provides for a new building on an island site in front of the existing house. This would allow direct access to Berkeley-street by the widening of the existing Lansdowne-passage.

WOMEN'S WORLD
FOR OUR LADY READERS.

BOILS AND CARBUNCLES.

[By a Family Doctor.]

A boil is a localized abscess of the skin caused by an organism known to bacteriologists as the Staphylococcus, and often starts in the roots of the hair at the nape of the neck. A carbuncle is a more deeply seated abscess, of the tissues under the skin. The germ which is responsible for these abscesses is a normal inhabitant of the skin, and can only attack it when the sufferer's natural bodily resistance is lowered by over-work or lack of sleep or when he is generally "run down." Under such circumstances the deeper layers of the skin are dissolved and converted into "pus." A barrier is, however, formed around the affected part by the blood corpuscles, which act as part of the body's defence.

The most natural tendency is to squeeze the pus out of the boil, but this is the worst possible treatment, as the pressure applied to the surface of the boil breaks down the surrounding barrier of defence tissue and spreads the pus over a greater area.

If the boil is treated while it is yet but a small pimple with a white spot showing through in the centre, it may be cured by plucking out the offending hair root with a pair of fine tweezers, and by cauterising the interior of the abscess by pricking it with a sharpened match-stick dipped in pure carbolic, the surrounding skin having first been painted with methylated spirit solution.

Should the boil have reached more formidable dimensions it will probably need to be lanced, and the advice of a doctor should be sought.

Carbuncles are extremely painful and make the sufferer feel very ill. They take a considerable time to heal and are more serious and difficult to treat than boils.

Some people are liable to suffer from crops of boils whenever they get mildly "run down," and in their case it may be worth while trying to build up their resistance with vaccines.

A Selection of 1931 Bathing Beauties.

These young ladies are displaying styles in bathing suits that will be worn during the year, and were photographed as they appeared at the San Francisco automobile show.

SUMMER SWEETS.

Jellied Pears With Almond.

Half a can of pears, 1 oz. almonds, juice of half a lemon, 2 ozs. cornflour, 1 pint pear syrup and water.

Arrange the pears, cut side up, in a glass or china dish. Stick with blanched almonds cut in strips. Mix cornflour with a little of the measured syrup and water; boil the remainder and pour on to the creamed cornflour. Boil for 5 minutes; add lemon juice. Tint, if desired, with a little carmine or lemon colouring. Pour over pears and serve when set.

Peach and Coconut Delight.

One medium-sized tin halved peaches, 3 ozs. cornflour, 1½ pints milk, 3 ozs. sugar, 2 ozs. desiccated coconut.

Drain the peaches and place a layer neatly in the bottom of a deep mould or pie dish. Blend the cornflour with a little of the cold milk. Boil the remainder and when boiling pour it on to the blended cornflour, stirring meanwhile to prevent lumps forming. Return to the pan, add the sugar, and simmer for 15 minutes. Add the coconut, blend well, and pour over the peaches. Put aside for several hours. Turn into a dish. Serve with thickened peach syrup.

Pineapple Cream.

¼-pint custard, ¼-pint cream or unsweetened evaporated milk, ½-pint crushed pineapple, 3 table-spoonfuls pineapple juice, 2 ozs. sugar, 1 oz. gelatine.

Strain the pineapple and put the gelatine to dissolve in three table-spoonfuls of the juice. Put the custard into a saucepan, add the pineapple and sugar and warm it, but do not allow it to become very hot. Then strain in the gelatine, stirring well to blend. When

"TRICK" DRESSES.

Serve Several Occasions.

Gowns that are made to serve three or four different sorts of occasions, are economical, and, with their trick-jackets or capes, very intriguing. These accessory pieces are worn over the dress, and usually cover the entire bodice. They tie at the back, and fall open a little over the trimmed yokes of the dresses. Many of them have high necks. Some are sleeveless and others have long full decorated sleeves.

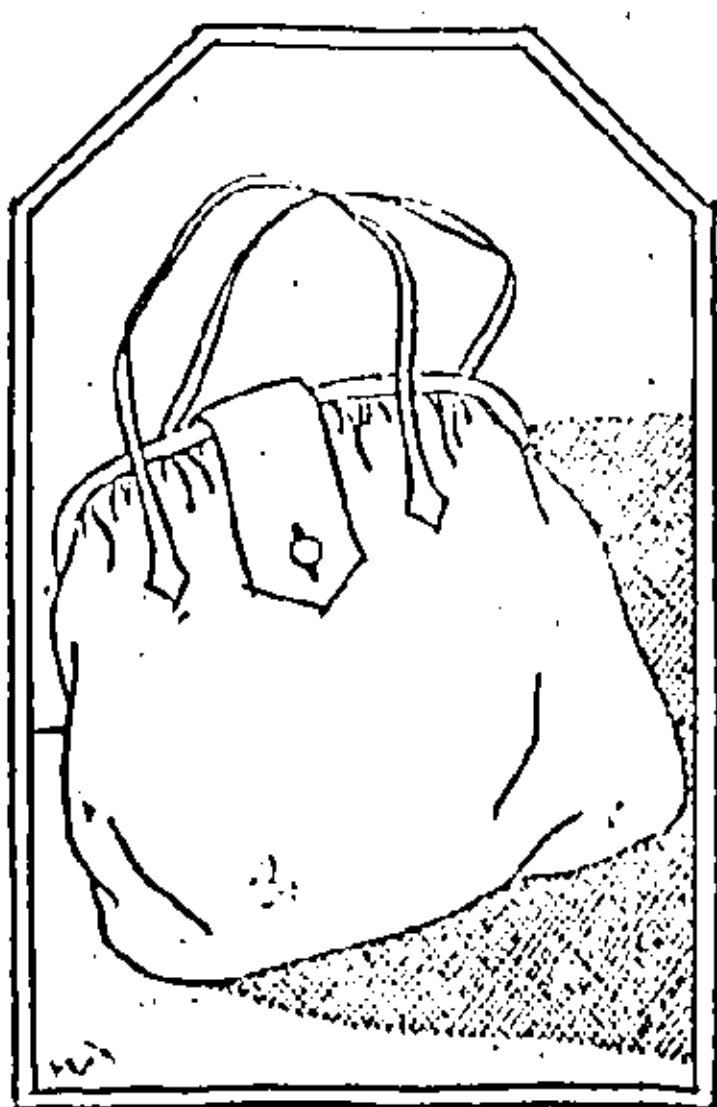

This sleeve question is being very well treated this season. A novel sleeve, the most cap at the shoulder, is one of the newest; it leaves the under-arm free. Some of the sleeves are being made very full at the wrists, and this fullness is caught in a tight narrow band.

A popular feature is the use of hip-flounces, these flouncing sometimes all around the body, and sometimes at the side only. Another interesting feature is the use of rows of flounces or ruffles, giving a tier effect, at least three tiers being the usual number. These are not placed close together, but occur at the waist, just above the knees, and at the lower hem.

Stripes will compete with plaids for supremacy in the outdoor mode. Algerian, Moorish, and Roman striped fabrics, in strong contrasting colours, are being featured. Stripes will run from pin size to 12 inches or more in width.

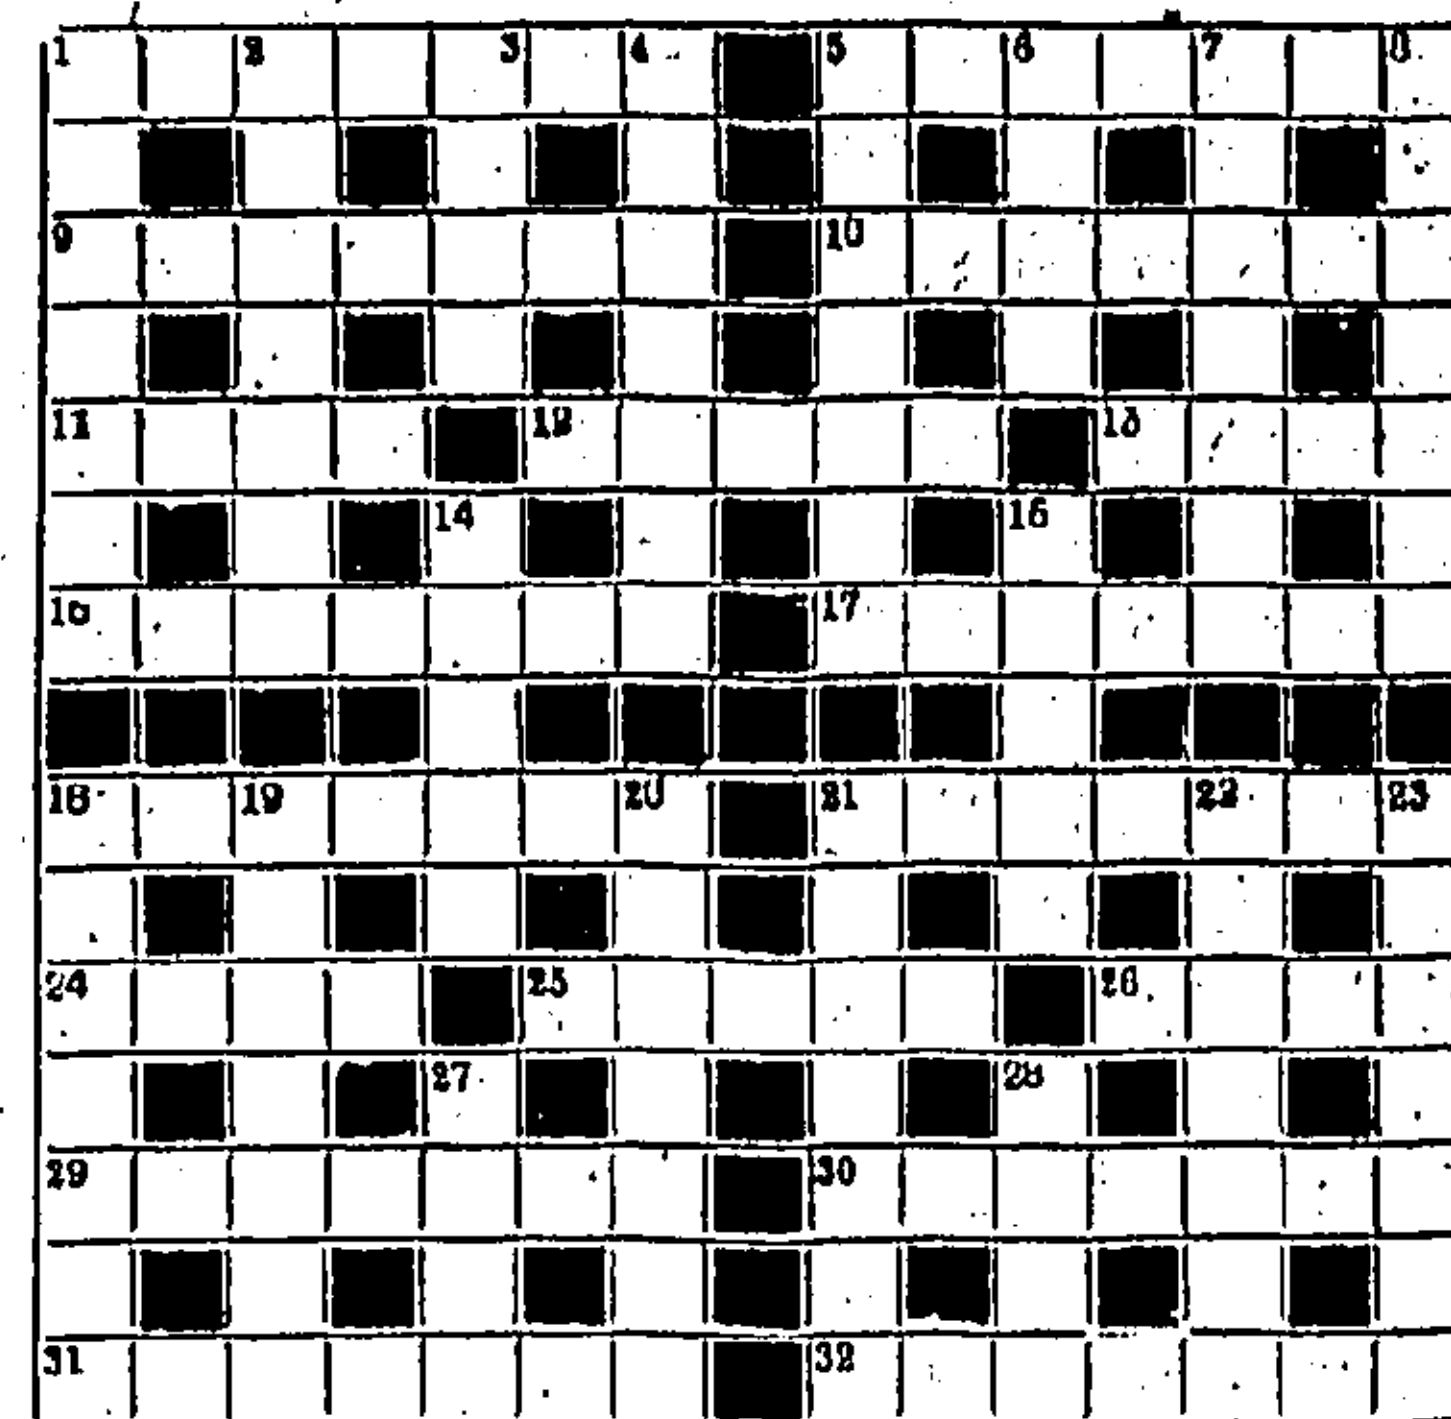

almost cold fold in the lightly beaten cream. Pour into a decorated mould and stand aside to set. To decorate, coat the mould with lemon jelly and arrange cherries, angelica, or pistachio nuts in an attractive design.

For the Beach.

A smart beach accessory is a bag of white jersey to match the white jersey ensemble.

STICKERS

Without any knowledge of geometry you can divide the above equilateral triangle into six smaller triangles, each of the same size. A bit of concentration is all that is needed.

Saturday's Solution

The above diagram shows one way how the even numbers, from 2 to 20, can be placed in such a way that both horizontal and vertical strings of circles add to 66.

RENO DIVORCE.

JUNE AND HER PETITION.

New York, May 4.
Lady Inverclyde anticipates an early hearing of her divorce suit at Reno.

"The petition is based upon allegations of mental cruelty," she said to-day.

"The action brought by Lord Inverclyde in Edinburgh to silence me suggested that he thought I was likely to make slanderous statements about him and our marriage, but that is not true, as will be seen when my suit is heard."

June admitted that she was expecting to go to Los Angeles after securing her divorce.

Reno Divorces.

The validity of Reno divorces is to be challenged by an action in the Illinois courts restraining a man from seeking divorce in Nevada.

His wife declares that her husband would be unable to obtain a decree in Chicago, but could dissolve the marriage in Reno for trivial reasons.

Her petition urges that the Nevada law infringes the rights of other States by offering their citizens an opportunity of overriding their marriage laws.

Should this action be sustained, it would affect scores of Reno divorces obtained by Chicago residents.

THE DANGERS OF BOREDOM.

The greatest danger that confronts civilized man nowadays is the danger of being bored. So says a noted psychologist who finds that the mechanized life of the modern world has made nervousness almost a universal complaint. Because of the machines that man has built to do his work for him, says this authority, he finds himself too often with no adequate outlet for his emotions and his energies. He is too safe, his wants are too easily satisfied. "To have a rich vitality and have nothing to apply it to; to have no dire need, never to miss or never to have the opportunity to yearn, is the worst form of emotional anemia and starvation. There is no lustre to life, no uncertainty, no adventure around the corner."

Made too secure by the perfection of mechanical contrivances, we try to find, in poor substitutes, the excitement that our ancestors found in direct action. We turn to novels for the thrill that the savage gets out of the hunt, we go to the talkies for the excitement that our early ancestors found in war, and we make sport, the prize fight or the automobile ride take the place of the healthy fears and desires of primitive man; and, all in all, it is not in the least good for us. Thus, says the authority quoted, we live under a nervous strain. The sameness of the daily routine, the monotony of the mechanized job, are driving us almost to distraction. We are rapidly losing our mental health because—in the strictly material sense—we have become too civilized. No man who has lived in the modern world will question the general accuracy of these conclusions. Thinkers have been crying the dangers of the mechanized era for a decade. The great question today is, What are we going to do about it? It has been suggested that one necessity is to reduce the amount of work that each man has to do. The shorter working day, seen from this angle, is not merely a pleasant dream of labourites; it is a pressing necessity, both for the manual worker and for the office employee.

If we are to retain the old zest in life, the old feeling of satisfaction and happiness, we must eventually cut down the time that each man has to give to his job. There is no other way out.

A mechanized era can do great things for mankind. It can set men free, can enable them to rove widely and devote long hours to enjoyment of life's real pleasures. But it will not do those things unless we realize that our present method of approach is all wrong. Here in Hongkong, there is little outside business and sport with which to occupy one's mind, unless one happens to be sufficiently fortunate to have a really interesting hobby to fill in spare hours. There is very little cultural activity here, whilst the opportunities for civic service, in which so many people at home find scope for their talents, are relatively few. We are glad to see of late, however, a tendency towards humanitarian work, which should make an appeal to our better instincts. As time goes on, we hope to see a marked development along these lines. The opportunities are great and the field is a big one; given leadership, we believe there will be no lack of helpers.

Logical Outcome.

There is little to remark in the decision of Sir John Simon and others of his way of thinking to sever their connexion with the official Liberal Party. The only wonder is that the eminent Liberal lawyer took so long to make up his mind to this course of action. Sir Robert Hutchison's resignation of the office of Chief Whip, indicating his disapproval of Liberal assistance to the Government, took place nearly a year ago, since when neither Sir Robert nor Sir John Simon have followed Mr. Lloyd George into the division lobbies. What has been termed a split, is, therefore, really the logical outcome of an impossible situation continued overlong. In Parliament, the strength of the Government will not be materially affected. On the contrary, it is more than likely that those Liberals who continue to lend their support to Mr. Lloyd George's policy of co-operation with the Government will be welded more strongly together. With the powerful argumentative skill and cold logic of Sir John Simon removed from the Liberal Party councils, "L.G." and his chief henchman, Sir Herbert Samuel, will, almost certainly, experience less difficulty than in the past months in persuading their followers to conform to official policy. With the voice of the doubters voluntarily withdrawn, the present Chief Whip will find his flock a trifle smaller perhaps, but more easily controlled. Meanwhile, the intentions of Sir John Simon will cause a good deal of speculation. His efforts to turn out the Labour Government have been as indefatigable almost as those of Mr. Winston Churchill, and it would occasion no surprise if he consented to receive the Conservative Whip. The probabilities are, however, that both Sir John and those who follow his lead will declare themselves to be Independents.

THE WOMAN BANDIT.

DARING RESCUE.

London, June 8. London's woman bandit, who, dressed in black, has figured in a number of smash-and-grab raids recently, played the role of rescuer of one of her male accomplices on Saturday night. A young man called at the house of Mr. Louis Gardner in Mayhew Crescent, Victoria Park, Hackney, and after ringing the doorbell a number of times, tried to force the door open with his shoulder. Mr. Gardner opened the door and seized the visitor, who tried to make off. A violent struggle followed, in which Mr. Gardner received a severe cut on the cheek and bruises. Mr. Gardner at last overpowered the man, and was about to call for assistance when the woman in black, whose age appeared to be about 30, dashed up and dragged her accomplice free. Both man and woman disappeared, and it is believed, drove away in a car which was waiting in a side street.

If I Did Not Have to Work.

By BEVERLEY NICHOLS.

There is a man walking the streets of London to-day who has never bought a sweepstake ticket.

The reason he has never bought one is not because he thinks, like the Prime Minister, that sweepstakes are dreadful, evil things, nor because he is a pessimist, nor a vegetarian.

He has never bought one for the very simple reason that he is afraid he might win.

He is quite sane . . . in fact, saner than most of us. He said: "If I won £30,000 I should not have to work any more. The idea terrifies me. It is not that I am completely devoid of intellectual resources. I have plenty to do in my leisure. I like gardening, I play golf, and I have always wanted time to be able to learn to play the Bach fugues properly, instead of always putting on the loud pedal and growing hot in the fingers when I come to the difficult parts."

"Then what are you afraid of?"

"Chaos!" he said, and there was a glint of real fear in his eyes.

"The lack of any pattern in life. Mornings that were the same as evenings! It takes real genius to be rich, unless your life is going to lose all form. Look at the people who don't have to work . . . why, even they, in sheer self-defence, have to impose certain arbitrary rules of conduct on themselves or they would be lost."

"How do you mean?"

"They have to be in London in the season. They have to be in Scotland in the season, or June, or the Lido, or wherever it is. You may say they needn't be. Then why are they? Why are they there when they will all tell you that they are bored by being there? And if you think that this is only a pose, and that they are not being bored, look in their eyes!"

He was silent for a moment.

"Every man is a slave to something. He is frightened if he is free. You may call me a slave to my office. I would rather be that sort of slave."

Then he said abruptly, "What would you do, if you did not have to work?"

It is a question that all men ought to ask themselves, in all sincerity.

You can read a man's character more truly by an honest answer to that question than by any other method. He will usually begin by answering you frivolously.

For instance, one thing that would certainly come into my own head would be the thought that at last I could get really brown . . . like the rich beach lizards who bask on the Riviera from May till August. So far I have never been able to spend more than three weeks in the sun. The first ten days pass by in an agonising, oily redness, the last ten days in a frantic effort to make the most of every day. On the last day of all, I may just have achieved a passable tan. But what is the use of that? Clothes must be put on again. The return to civilisation must be made. In a month one's body is again as white as a slug.

Or I might get on a tramp steamer in order to learn if the South Sea Islands are as grossly over-rated as I suspect.

But chaos—oh yes, that was and is a very real hell to me.

As a child I pictured a gray tormented region with winding paths that led perpetually to nowhere. A region where it was neither night nor day, but where the scared landscape was blurred by twilight; where the men and women who drifted by were neither enemies nor friends, but children of Nothing. No roads to build, because they would always lead to nowhere (like Ruskin's). No streams to dam, because all the streams trickled wearily into the grey earth and were gone. No fires to build, because it was a land neither of cold nor of warmth, but a land of grey drifting smoke.

The land, in fact, of people who do not have to work. Well, I do not want to visit it.

I have seen its shadow across the faces of the unemployed. That is enough for me.

"I'll take some more of that potato salad. My husband always compliments me on it."

Or take out my German grammar and master those awful verbs, from abfahren to zwingen, which stand like ugly custodians between me and the door of a great literature. Or if I were rich and very bored, go to Vienna and be psycho-analysed.

Actually I think that whatever I did would take the form of self-education. The trouble with most writers is that they are always so busy pouring things out of their heads that they have precious little time left to put things in.

They have to feel so much that they know very little. I doubt if a dozen writers, apart from Shaw, Wells, and Aldous Huxley, could tell you how many ribs they possess, or draw you a map of Jugoslavia, or tell you the names of more than three members of the American Cabinet.

Yet these are childishly elemental facts, unknown to the average novelist, who yet has no hesitation in dissecting the infinitely complex machinery of a woman's heart!

What ever I did, it would not be "nothing." The world is full of people who think that it would be wonderful to do "nothing," and it is time that they disillusioned themselves. For there is a terrible fate that hangs over all those with nothing to do. They never have any spare time!

The busy man is the only man who ever has any spare time. If you want half an hour with a busy man, you can usually be fairly certain of getting it, but if you want half an hour with an idler, you can't.

Why should this be? It seems paradoxical. Yet it is really only logical.

Time, for a busy man is real and precious. Each sparkling hour has its meaning, its colour, its place. It is like a jewel, and one does not throw jewels away. But for the idle man, no hour has its meaning or colour. Each hour is the same.

So if you ask the idle man for half an hour of his "time," he does not know what you mean. He really does not. He has no "time."

He can only blink and look about him . . . see the strange, formless monotony of his life, and whisper to himself: "Time? What does he mean? I do not know what time is! I have moods . . . experiences . . . hungers . . . but what is this thing called time? I know it not! It is a foolish reaction of fussy persons!"

So he reasons, and having reasoned, arrives half an hour late for luncheon. And if you arrive half an hour late for luncheon you are out of step with life.

"Chaos!" It all comes back to that . . . as the man who would not buy a sweepstake ticket had observed. For how many of us have the power or the energy to shape our lives without the economic urge? And chaos is the only hell I have ever been able to visualize.

I have even as a child could not work up any great panic about perpetual frizzlings, because I had discovered, in the kitchen, that if you boiled treacle for long enough it did not become toffee. It disappeared altogether. The same result, one concluded, would occur with human substances. I could not imagine pain divorced from living tissue. And when you cannot imagine a thing—whether it is heaven or hell—it cannot exist for you.

But chaos—oh yes, that was and is a very real hell to me.

As a child I pictured a gray tormented region with winding paths that led perpetually to nowhere. But chaos—oh yes, that was and is a very real hell to me.

As a child I pictured a gray tormented region with winding paths that led perpetually to nowhere. A region where it was neither night nor day, but where the scared landscape was blurred by twilight; where the men and women who drifted by were neither enemies nor friends, but children of Nothing. No roads to build, because they would always lead to nowhere (like Ruskin's). No streams to dam, because all the streams trickled wearily into the grey earth and were gone. No fires to build, because it was a land neither of cold nor of warmth, but a land of grey drifting smoke.

The land, in fact, of people who do not have to work. Well, I do not want to visit it.

"CITY LIGHTS."TRIUMPH FOR CHARLIE CHAPLIN.

Films worthy of recommendation usually drop into one of three categories—those which simply must be seen, those which are worthy of a visit and those which are above the average. The least said about the remainder the better, as a rule.

"City Lights," Charlie Chaplin's latest effort, the result of his resistance to the development of the talking-picture, most assuredly comes into the first category. It has been said that only Chaplin could make a silent film to-day and make the audience like it. It might be said with more truth that Chaplin's artistry triumphs in quite a different sense; he doesn't make one like a silent picture; he holds the attention so completely that one doesn't realise or care exactly what type of picture is being shown.

The film starts with a delightful burlesque on the "talkies" and proceeds rapidly from incident to incident, the inevitable anticlimax coming in just at the moment, until the eminent-by-suitable ending. There are touches of pathos, but burlesque rules the roost, and the net result is Charlie at his best. In the boxing ring, he keeps one holding one's sides, and his activities as a city scavenger must be seen to be appreciated.

Virginia Cherrill, one of Chaplin's discoveries, plays opposite him most charmingly as the blind girl. The supporting cast get little of a show.

An extremely interesting Pathé-tone Weekly introduces the feature film.

MUKDEN TROOPS MOVING.BATCH FOR PEKING AND TIENTSIN.

Nanking, June 29. White General Chang Hsueh-liang is understood to be intending to move some of his troops from Manchuria to Peking and Tientsin, with the aim of preserving peace in Chihli. Marshal Chiang Kai-shek is apprehensive over the possibility of a Communist outbreak in Nanking and has summoned General Ku Chu-tung (the officer commanding the Second Nationalist Division) to act concurrently as commander of the Garrison troops.

A Peking message states that General Chang Hsueh-liang has issued a statement setting forth the reasons for moving four Manchurian regiments to Peking and Tientsin. He urges the people not to believe in the rumours now in circulation of an imminent revolt among certain troops in North China.

Both Generals Chiang Kwang-nai and Tsai Ting-kai of the Nineteenth Route Army have resigned. The latter has arrived at Kiangsi and is expected at Shanghai soon. —Reuter.

LIBERALS AND THE GOVERNMENT.COMMON ACTION FOR COMMON PURPOSES.

Sir Herbert Samuel speaking at Darwen, Lancashire, on a recent Saturday, denied rumours that he was leaving the Liberal party to take a Cabinet post. "There has never been any such intention in my mind," he declared.

Discussing the Liberal policy of co-operation with the Government, Sir Herbert said the Government had done nothing to make co-operation impossible. Over a large field of politics, the two progressive parties had common purposes. They were free to pursue those purposes by common action.

In the forefront of politics was the strenuous effort that was being made to establish a general tariff and so bring this country on to the same footing as the Protectionist countries on the Continent. Becoming ever more imminent was the issue of the House of Lords.

"In these circumstances the policy of co-operation has been approved by the Liberal Shadow Cabinet, endorsed by the opinion of Lord Grey, approved at meetings of the Liberal Parliamentary Party and of the Liberal-Gandian Association, and has been supported at the recent conference of the National Liberal Federation by a majority of perhaps 30 to 1.

"We can co-operate and yet be independent. Our right is untrammelled to propose any change in Government Bills or if need be to place ourselves in opposition."

"We understand quite clearly what was the mandate conferred upon us by the 5,000,000 voters who supported us at the last election, and we are resolved to fulfil it. The late Conservative evidence was unworthy of acceptance. Mr. Jenkin said he would show there was such a degree of doubt in the Crown evidence that the jury could not be fully satisfied that the crime had been brought home to prisoner.

CLOSING STAGES OF MURDER TRIAL.

No Motive.

The absence of motive—and there was, admittedly, none in the present case—was the strongest presumption of a man's innocence, and when it was remembered that prisoner went about his ordinary business after the affair, until easily arrested, that conduct and the absence of motive should carry the day.

Inability to visit the premises to see for themselves whether Crown witnesses could, with various shades of lighting, actually see what they claimed, was embarrassing to the defence, but he did not lay the blame at any particular place. In dealing with the stories of eye-witnesses, counsel said confusion was absolutely rife. How could they pick out certain parts of that evidence and say those parts must certainly be true? They could not, in fact, convict a person on a capital charge, on evidence of that kind.

Impossibilities.

It was all very well to say that, in the main, they agreed in their evidence. If things they had sworn to were impossible, what was the good of saying the witnesses must be believed because of something which they agreed on in the main?

The jury would have to hesitate a great deal before accepting that evidence.

Mr. Jenkin asked the jury to ignore the evidence of the young boy. It had been very distasteful to cross-examine one so young, but he had shown by his replies both to him and to prosecuting counsel, that his evidence could not be relied upon.

Overworked Doctor?

Referring to the medical evidence, counsel said he wished to make it quite clear that anything he had to say concerning Dr. Uttley was not intended to be personal. He had to review his evidence, and he unhesitatingly said that the doctor had absolutely failed to establish anything.

It may have been through overwork that he had not been able to give proper attention to the case, but he submitted, that was nothing to do with the Court. The doctor had told them nothing which warranted a moment's respect. They, as a jury, were entitled to the best possible data, and should have such data before them before they could be satisfied on such a serious matter as they were now considering.

The question might be raised as to why Dr. Uttley, as the only medical man to give evidence, should not have his evidence taken as being indisputable. The reason no other medical man had been called was that he would not be able to form any opinion from Dr. Uttley's data and notes.

Mr. Somerset Fitzroy: That is admitted.

Possible Confusion.

When he was asked for his notes, continued Mr. Jenkin, he merely relied on his recollection, which, in such a case, was most dangerous. When a man was as busy as Dr. Uttley, it was quite likely that his memory would become dim, and there was the danger, unless he had the fullest notes, that he would confuse it with other cases. It was essential that he took the fullest notes possible.

It was not pleasant having to criticise a brother professional man, but he would remind them that when he asked the doctor if an organ was not congested, whether it was regarded as normal, he replied "Yes," and that when he further questioned him he said that when an organ was normal he either put a tick against it, or left it blank. He then gave evidence that he found the heart, lungs and brain congested, yet when he showed his notes to the Court, they found that against the heart, he had put a tick, and against the brain was a blank. He put it to them that it was impossible to accept such evidence.

The case is proceeding.

Government was condemned by the electors at the polls. They lost 150 seats. We are not disposed to connive at their return."

The Liberal Party would not be deterred from its course by jeers or taunts in the House of Commons or by accusations and insinuations of secret bargains.

These would not influence them in the slightest degree, for they knew that the insinuations rested on no foundation.

THE LOST CITY OF AJJUL.SIR FLINDERS PETRIE'S DISCOVERIES.

Students of Egyptian archaeology were kept deeply interested for an hour and a half when Sir Flinders Petrie, the eminent Egyptologist, gave a lecture on "The City of the Shepherd Kings," at University College, London.

The lecture was a summarised description of the work already done by Sir Flinders and the students of the British School of Archaeology in their efforts to explore the lost city of Ajjul, Palestine, and was illustrated by slides.

"The excavations we have carried out in South Palestine so far," said Sir Flinders, "have now brought us to the actual site of Ajjul, the home of the Hyksos, or Shepherd Kings. It is twenty times larger than Troy, and lies on the ancient international road between Palestine and Egypt. It was strongly fortified originally, and with its ramparts and defences covered a wide area. As it was a key city in those days, its harbours must have played an important part in the trade between Asia and Africa.

"Our discoveries clearly controvert the popular notion that the Shepherd Kings were merely wandering nomads living in their tents. These are evidence of centuries of settlement with brick fortresses, harbours, and a system of weights and measures that shows established commerce with Egypt and other countries.

A Secret Tunnel.

"Ajjul was abandoned about 2000 B.C., probably owing to malaria. A new settlement was then made at Gaza, five miles to the north. The city gate of Ajjul stood at the north-east corner over a rising embankment. Below this was the outer gate, with a complex of walls and trenches, overlooking a wide fosse 150 feet from edge to edge."

Sir Flinders described the finding of a secret tunnel, extending to a distance of 500 feet, under the plain. The inner end of the tunnel, which had evidently been an avenue of escape from the town, was completely washed away. One inference to be drawn from this was that the city itself had also been washed away. Recent digging operations in this tunnel had been necessarily slow; progress, in fact, was only about six or seven feet a day.

At another point of their excavations they went down through three storeys of buildings and found rooms full of debris. The walls, 8 ft. high, and the doorways are still intact, and it was possible to walk through them as at Pompeii. Altogether, eighty of these chambers were excavated.

A Lost Ornament.

"Among the ornaments we found," added Sir Flinders, "was the replica of a bird in graduated gold work, with spread wings—an ornament which had evidently been lost by some lady of 2000 B.C. in the broad street of Ajjul. We also found a Hyksos spoon, the only one of its kind still in existence.

"In all the tombs we have visited we found human beings, horses, and asses buried together.

"Among the skeletons of horses were those of the type known as the 'great horse,' which was specially imported by the Hyksos for riding. These horses had been buried most carefully. Also in the tombs were stone jars for the dead, bronze daggers, a rapier, and a quantity of flat-bottomed pottery of a shape entirely non-Egyptian.

"There is still work for the next fifty years at Ajjul, but financial support is urgently required."

LOOPING THE LOOP AT 1,000 FT.LOW FLYING CASES DISMISSED.

Described in court as one of Britain's most famous aerobatic airmen, Kenneth George Murray, of Brooklands aerodrome, Byfleet, and Grosvenor-terrace, Edinburgh, was summoned at Woking for aerobatic flying over the populous district of Byfleet and also for flying at such a low altitude as to cause unnecessary danger to persons and property.

Mr. A. D. Dodson (chairman of Byfleet Parish Council) said that Murray looped the loop over his house at a height of between 500 feet and 1,000 feet.

Mr. F. Bowles (defending) submitted that Murray approached the aerodrome in a proper way and at right angles to the direction of the wind. Murray was a famous airman and had been chosen to represent Britain at an International Air Exhibition in Germany.

Mr. Murray said that everything he did in this case was quite safe to ensure a good landing at the aerodrome.

Other expert evidence supported this view, and the magistrates, holding that there was no unnecessary danger, dismissed both summonses.

NEW EXPERIMENT.BRINGING DEAD LANGUAGE TO LIFE.

A dead language came to life recently in a lighted room before the Greek class at the University of Pittsburgh, when Prof. H. S. Scribner, head of the Greek Department, spoke the famous Greek word "Eureka" into a new device developed in the Westinghouse Research Laboratories.

As the word "Eureka" entered the device, curious lines very much like an animated movie wriggled from left to right across a screen about the size of a large plate.

These lines showed the "high" and "low" spots of the professor's voice. They made it possible for listeners to distinguish the "pure" from the compound notes or tones which are heard by the human ear.

Words of other languages—including French, German, Spanish, and English—were spoken into the device, and other curious lines wriggled across the screen. For the first time a "moving talkie" of a human voice was shown in a lighted room before a large number of persons. This device makes "moving talkies" of all sounds, as well as those of the human voice.

When a stone is dropped in a pond, this device enables one to see the "sound waves" which the splash creates just as the eye sees the water waves. It enables engineers to examine the "high" and "low" of various sounds, and thus take their first major step in relieving the tremendous strain which city noises are said to impose upon the human nervous system.

It is entirely possible to do away with the high and low spots of many noises to produce, or approach, silence. For instance, two tuning forks with equal wave lengths or frequencies are set in motion. While each produces a note which is heard by the human ear, yet both together, under certain conditions, produce a "silent" note which is not heard by the human ear.

Test Purposes.

Professor Scribner is using this apparatus for test purposes at the University of Pittsburgh.

"The application of this device in schools and colleges, said Prof. Scribner, "is not limited to reviving and showing students the correct pronunciation of dead languages such as Greek, Latin, or Sanskrit."

"It is expected to be helpful in teaching the correct pronunciation of English, French, Spanish, and Italian. With a photograph of a correctly pronounced word before him, the beginner is able to see just how far and in what way his pronunciation is wrong. Students should be able to learn to speak a language in nearly half the time if they can 'see' their mistakes and correct them accordingly."

The apparatus consists essentially of an ordinary microphone such as is used in radio broadcasting, the new cathode ray oscilloscope developed by Mr. Osborn, and some batteries. The whole set-up can be packed in two large suitcases.

The heart of this new instrument is the cathode ray tube of the oscilloscope. It resembles a funnel about the size of an old-fashioned phonograph horn-speaker. The large end of the tube, about the size of a dinner plate, fills a round opening on the front panel of the case. This is the screen upon which the moving talkies strut their stuff.

In the neck of the funnel is an "electron gun" that shoots a narrow beam of electrons toward the large end, or screen. These electrons strike the inside surface with a very high velocity due to the influence of high voltage impressed on a coating of silver on the inside surface of the tapered part of the tube. The bombardment of any small spot on the inside surface by a narrow high speed beam of electrons causes the spot to glow on the outside with a bright green light.

The bright spot is caused to move about on the screen by deflecting the beam of electrons as it emerges from the "muzzle" of the gun. This is done by placing two pairs of magnetic coils at right angles on the neck of the tube near the "muzzle."

Magnetic Field.

Through one pair of these coils flows a current generated by a special vacuum tube, oscillator located in the lower compartment of the oscilloscope case. The magnetic field produced by this current causes the bright spot to move back and forth across the screen. The motion from left to right is linear—that is, at a constant velocity—and the return from right to left is at about fifty times the forward velocity.

This whole cycle, in a typical case, lasts only one-thirtieth of a second and is repeated time after time so that the path of the bright spot appears as a bright, straight horizontal line across the face of the cathode ray tube.

Now, if alternating current resulting from a voice wave striking the microphone is sent through the second pair of coils, the magnetic field produced by it will cause the straight line to bend itself into the exact shape of the wave of the alternating current.

WATER LEVELS.DETAILS FOR WEST, NORTH AND EAST RIVERS.

The following table, issued by the Kwangtung River Conservancy Commission, shows in English feet the water levels on the West River, North River and East River on the dates named:

	June	June
	27	28
West River at Shuhung	27.0	30.5
North River at Samshui	18.6
North River at Tsingyuen	19.0	20.0
East River at Sheklung	11.4
The highest levels recorded are:
—Shuhung, 41 feet; Tsingyuen, 29.2 feet; Samshui, 27.3 feet; Sheklung, 11.5 feet.
The lowest levels on record are minus 5 feet at Samshui and minus 2.7 feet at Sheklung.

Thus, the shape of any alternating current or voltage can easily be studied by connecting the current or voltage to the proper terminals of the oscilloscope panel.

LEAGUE TENNIS.

H.K.C.C. HEAD FIRST DIVISION.

As a result of their defeat of South China, the Hongkong Cricket Club now head the "A" Division League Table while Club de Recreation, gaining comfortable success in both "B" and "C," lead the remainder of the teams in both divisions.

The week-end programme, curtailed through uplift courts, did not contain a surprise result; but necessitated a reshuffling of the teams in the three leagues. The Civil Service had a bad time, losing two matches, one being to the Chinese Recreation Club in the "B," this being the latter's first match of the season. The Y.M.C.A. advanced to sixth place in the "C," obtaining their sixth point from five games. Results:

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

America's most distinguished star, John Barrymore, whose voice has charmed two continents on the stage, speaks from the screen for the first time as the star of "General Crack," Warner Bros. Vitaphone special scheduled to open at the Queen's Theatre on Sunday.

In the title role of "General Crack," adapted by Walter Anthony from the George Freely novel, Barrymore enacts the son of a gypsy princess and a nobleman, who becomes the greatest military leader of his time.

The role of General Crack, the mad Prince Christian—is a constant conflict between inherited traits. The story is laid in middle Europe during the early part of the eighteenth century. In addition to making his initial bow as General Crack, Mr. Barrymore also plays the father of his character in the prologue, and enacts his father's ghost in later scenes.

The exceptional cast appearing in his support includes Lovell Sherburn, Marian Nixon, Armida, Robert Bosworth, Jacqueline Logan, Otto Matison, Philippe de Lacy, Andrea de Segurain, Douglas Gerrard, William Von Brinken, Theodore Lodi, Nick Thompson and Curt Rayfield.

Alvin Crossland, whose adroitness in painting dramatic canvases on a wide scale, places him among the top-notch talking picture directors, directed this sweeping tale of court intrigue and gypsy love.

"Splinters."

The first shows of "Splinters" were put on very roughly near the front line, but so great was the success and so obvious the effect on the spirits of the troops, that General Horne, after witnessing a performance, promised every assistance and caused the "Bra Sat Theatre" to be built. Very soon "Splinters" became something more than a Concert Party; it became an institution.

By this time, Hal Jones and Reg Stone, the female impersonator, had become immensely popular. Tommy within miles of the Show used to make an effort to get there.

The end of the War did not bring about the end of "Splinters," however, and today, more than eleven years afterwards, the show with its chorus, its principal comedian, Hal Jones, and Reg Stone, is still a feature at the London Provincial theatres.

When it came to making the picture of "Splinters," that is to say, telling the story of how it came into being and of the effect it had, General Horne at once promised his personal support; and, indeed, would have appeared in it in person had not his untimely death put an end to such possibility.

The story is based upon actual happenings. Some of the items from the original show in France have been included and will doubtless be remembered by the many thousands of soldiers who knew the old "Bra Sat Theatre" in France.

"Splinters" is real, solid, satisfying entertainment, and is having its final showings at the King's Theatre today.

"Stolen Heaven."

Theatre goers should find in "Stolen Heaven," Nancy Carroll's new drama, which opened at the Central Theatre yesterday, something really enjoyable, and, at the same time, worthwhile, in talking picture pleasure. It brings her forward in still other characterization, different from her previous portrayals.

Playing opposite Phillips Holmes, Nancy Carroll plays the part of a discouraged and life-weary girl whose one good deed saves Holmes from the police. Holmes, as sleek as she is, poses that they spend the proceeds of a robbery he has committed in one last, gay fling at life, and, then together, seek death. They plunge madly into a feverish melee of gambling, dancing, dining, playing. The money is soon exhausted, and nothing remains for Holmes but death. A millionaire playboy offers Nancy marriage. But Holmes and Nancy discover their love for each other, and love adds a new meaning to life, makes it something worth fighting for.

George Abbott, the distinguished stage-screen director, was director of "Stolen Heaven."

"Plunder" is the kind of real comedy that Englishmen like, and includes the noted comedians, Ralph Lynn and

TWO FURTHER VICTORIES RECORDED.

Two further victories were recorded by the South China football touring team in Java during the week-end.

On Saturday, at Samarang, a crowd of 10,000 witnessed a duel between the home team's defence and the tourists' attack. Lee Wai-tung opened the score and Chu Kwok-luen (the inside right, who during the last seven matches had been practically a bystander so far as goal-scoring is concerned) quickly added three. Further goals were scored by the other three forwards.

Fung King-chung (2), Ip Pak-wah (1) and Cheung Sin-hong (1). South China finally won by 8-0.

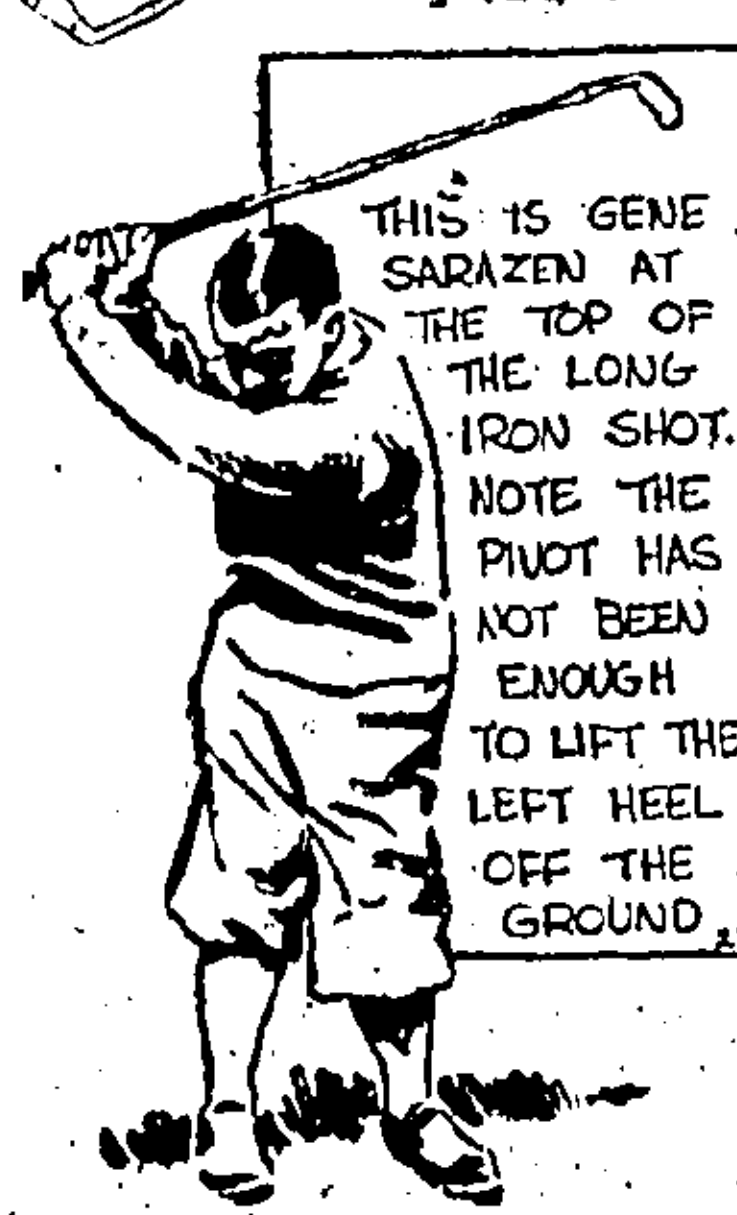

On Sunday, competing against the Djoeja selected eleven, the tourists ran out winners by 6-2, the goal-scorers being Chu Kwok-luen (2), Ip Pak-wah (2) and Tam Wong-pak and Wong Ki-leung (1 each).

SABRE CHAMPIONS.

The cadets' foil, sabre and bayonet championships were decided, the R.M.A. winning the foil through Gent-Cadet B. Wilson. The R.N. won both sabre and bayonet through Chief Cadet Captain J. E. F. Willoughby and Sub-Lieut. G. C. M. Falla, respectively. Style prizes were awarded to Gent-Cadet Wyatt, R.M.A. in the bayonet; Chief Cadet Captain Knapp, R.N. in the foil, and Cadet Darbyshire, R.N. in the sabre.

GOLF as the STARS play it.

How does one execute the back-swing for a long iron shot?

Following up the proper address for a long iron shot which I gave yesterday, I offer this advice on the matter of bringing the club to the top of the back-swing for the same kind of a shot. The clubhead should be taken back close to the ground and with the left hand in control and close to the body. The left knee may dip slightly toward the ball but not enough to lift the left heel, which should be kept close to the ground throughout the entire swing.

No different than a wood shot, the left arm should remain straight, with the right arm tucked in close to the body.

NEW ZEALAND OUT FOR 224.

ENGLAND'S BATSMEN ALSO FAIL

London, June 27. Glorious weather prevailed for the opening of the Test Match between England and New Zealand at Lords to-day, but counter attractions at Wimbledon and the London Air display kept down the attendance. There was not the bustle associated with the Tests against Australia, and only a thousand were present when the gates opened at 9.45 a.m.

The turf, which was very hard, would have suited the unlucky Larwood, who was kept out of the team through injury.

New Zealand won the toss, and T. C. Lowry decided on the following order of batting for first occupation of the wicket:—Dempster, Mills, Weir, Kerr, Blunt, Page, Lowry, Cromb, Allcott, Merritt and James.

First 50 Up.

The crowd had increased to 10,000 when Mills, with brilliant cuts and drives, and showing great enterprise against the attack of Voce and Allen, sent up the 50 after 40 minutes of play. Dempster was cautious but confident, but at 58, Mills was clean bowled by Peebles, his total being 34, made in forty-eight minutes, and including five boundary hits.

The 100 went up after 105 minutes play, Dempster completing his half century, but adding only three more, he stepped in front of a straight one from Peebles, the second wicket falling at 130. Dempster's 53 took 115 minutes to compile, and six fours were his chief strokes.

Weir and Kerr, with 34 and 2 respectively, took the scores along to 132, when the lunch adjournment was made.

Deadly Field Work.

After the interval, Weir was l.b.w. to Peebles with his score at 37, and the total at 136, and four runs later, Ames, stumped Kerr off Robins, 140-4. Blunt was taken by Hammond at short slip off Robins after scoring 7, the fifth wicket falling at 152. Lowry was a quick victim to a clever catch by Hammond, who held the ball at a second attempt, and the sixth wicket fell at 161. Ames caught Cromb, off Peebles, for 20, the seventh wicket being yielded at 190, and Page, who stayed to make 28, was clean bowled by Allen with only a single added to the total. Hammond effected his third catch in dismissing Allcott, off Peebles, at 209, this dismissal also marking Peebles' 100th wicket of the series.

Hammond captured the last wicket, when Merritt played into Jardine's hands, after hitting up 17, and this left James not out with a single, and extras totalling 16.

England's Bad Start.

England made a bad start in her reply. Arnold was taken by Page at first slip, off Cromb, before he had scored, the first wicket falling at 5, and Bakewell, misjudging the pace of Cromb's delivery, put his leg in front of a straight one, 14-2. Hammond supplied Cromb with his third victim, when, after scoring seven, he was clean bowled, the bored reeling 81-3. Duleep Singh remained to hit up a quarter of a century, and then left at 62, well caught by Kerr, off Merritt, at long-on. Jardine remained to help carry the score to 129, of which his share was 38, but he, too, fell to a catch by Blunt, from Merritt's bowling.

Woolley was generally bowled by Merritt when he had scored 40, and was eventually dismissed l.b.w. by Merritt, after hitting up 80. Woolley's fifty was reached after an hour at the wicket. The sixth wicket fell at 188. Peebles was quickly stumped by James, off Merritt, and added nothing to the score, the close play leaving England with a total of 190 for 7, Ames being not out with fifteen to his credit.—Reuter.

THE LAST EIGHT.

SATO AND BOROTRA JOIN THE SELECT.

London, June 27. The biggest crowd of the meeting gathered at Wimbledon in glorious weather to-day to see Jiro Sato enter the last eight of the Men's Singles, beating H.G.N. Lee (Great Britain) 8-0, 6-4, 6-3. Britain suffered a further setback when the hard-hitting American, Helen Jacobs beat Mrs. L. A. Godfrey, twice winner of the Championship, and the only English player to win the Women's title since the war, 6-2, 6-1. Miss Jacobs enters the last eight.

Sato's Cunning.

Sato took a long time to find his length, and Lee led 4-1 before Sato's cunning returns told their tale. The Japanese took four games running before Lee levelled up to 6-4, and Lee then took the twelfth with great passing shots; but Sato was clearly the master and the result was already practically certain. Sato's placing in the last two sets, and his corner giving him nearly all his points. Neither player served really well, and Sato's win was due entirely to his superior court craft.

Hla Majesty the King, accompanied by the Queen, arrived during the match.

Former Champion Beaten.

Mrs. Godfrey never played like the champion of 1924-5. She started well, coming up to the net and putting away her volleys nicely, made her opponent do a lot of running about. But she then lost control of her forehand, while Miss Jacobs, just finding the lines with her back hand strokes, and indulging in a typical American service, played a much stronger game, and was generally much more successful.

Bare-legged Betty Nuthall entered the last eight, beating Mrs. Harper, who ranks as America's No. 1. The scores were 6-4, 6-2. Miss Nuthall thus repeating her success over the American in the U.S.A. Championship of last year.

Betty was at first a little wild in her returns, and seemed anxious to make winners with every ball instead of awaiting her opportunities. She hit harder than her opponent, but her service was not so good. The American led 3-1, but Miss Nuthall then found her length and recovered to 4-1. The power of Miss Nuthall's shots were sometimes too much for Mrs. Harper, who only managed to knock them down. From this point the game was all Betty's, and making no mistakes with service had the American at her mercy.

In the fourth round of the Ladies' Singles, Miss Scriven, who has done little since winning the Junior Championship, surprisingly eliminated Miss Jean Ridley, 6-1, 6-4. Mme. Mathieu (France) defeated Mrs. Van Ryn (U.S.A.) 6-4, 6-4, and also entered the last eight.

Austin and Borotra Through.

Britain contributed another player to the quarter-finals, when H. W. ("Bunny") Austin beat I. G. Collins in straight sets by 6-3, 6-3, 6-4. Borotra also joined this select band, at the expense of Artens, the Austrian. The scores in this instance were 6-4, 6-2, 6-3.—Reuter.

RESULTS.

AMERICA WINS THE RYDER CUP.

BRITAIN SWAMPED ON SATURDAY.

America has regained the Ryder Professional Golf Cup from Britain by an overwhelming victory on the Scioto Course, at Columbus, Ohio.

On Friday, America won three out of the four foursome matches, and on Saturday, won six out of the eight singles. The singles scores were:

Walter Hagen (America) beat Charles Whitcombe (Britain), 4 and 3.

Billy Burke (America) beat A. Compston (Britain), 7 and 6.

Gene Sarazen (America) beat J. Robson (Britain), 7 and 6.

Whitby Cox (America) beat Abe Mitchell (Britain), 3 and 1.

Arthur Havers (Britain) beat Wood (America), 4 and 3.

Al Espinosa (America) beat E. Whitcombe (Britain), 2 and 1.

Densmore Shute (America) beat Hodson (Britain), 8 and 6.

W. H. Davies (Britain) beat Joe Farrell (America), 4 and 3.

British Players Fight Uphill in Vain.

Columbus, June 27.

Confident that the British inferiority in the foursomes would not be reflected in the singles today, the Ryder Cup players were somewhat encouraged by the cooler weather. It is still hot, but there is a brisk breeze.

However, at the end of the ninth hole not a single Britisher was leading. Davies being all-square.

Hagen again revelled in thrilling adventures, placing shots from the rough, pin high for birdies. He was not a bit terrorised by the bunkers which he found most frequently.

The positions at the ninth hole were:

Burke, 2 up.

Sarazen, 2 up.

Hagen, 2 up.

Al Espinosa, 2 up.

Cox, 1 up.

Shute, 1 up.

Wood, 1 up.

Farrell and Davies all square.

Sarazen had a dazzling outward journey, his card reading:—

3,4,4,4,4,5,3,3, a total of 34. Robson, his opponent, took 38. The inward scores of these players were:—Sarazen 37, Robson 38. At the eighteenth, Sarazen lead by 3 up.

Robson was lying dead at the 14th, but had the chagrin to see Sarazen sink a 30-foot putt for a half. Robson became three down at the 17th, and missed a long putt by inches only at the 18th.

Fighting back grimly, the Britons improved, and their position was encouraged by two great "engines" by Davies and Ernest Whitcombe, at the 9th and 18th holes respectively. Both these holes were won from opponents who had birdies.

Havers was three up at the fifteenth hole, but he frittered away the home hole, where both were on the green in two, by making a wild approach putt.

Mitchell played par golf on the way home in the morning, and was two up at the 12th. Cox squared at the fifteenth, but Mitchell snatched the lead with a birdie four on the home green.

Davies, who played a great game, had to fight doubly all the way. In GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

Sunday, June 21st.—His Excellency the Governor and Lady Peel moved to Mountain Lodge.

Friday, June 25th.—Commander Hatakeyama R.I.J.M.S. "Saga" paid an official call on His Excellency the Governor at Mountain Lodge.

Captain T. A. H. Colman A.D.C. representing His Excellency the Governor returned the calls of Captain de Corville Berthand of the French Gunboat "Marne," and Commander Hatakeyama R.I.J.M.S. "Saga."

Saturday, June 27th.—Mr. A. E. Wood arrived at Mountain Lodge.

The following were the guests at dinner the Hon. Mr. Southern, the Hon. Mr. J. Scott, the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Hafffax, Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Creary, Mr. and Mrs. Sayer, Comdr. and Lady Mary Barton, Mr. and Mrs. Hancock, Mr. and Mrs. North, Miss Hafffax, Miss H. Hancock, and Miss R. Hancock.

RAID ON COMMUNISTS.

PEKING POLICE DISCOVER BAND AT SINCERE'S.

Peking, June 27.

The Police raided the offices of the Sincere Company and arrested an assistant at the establishment who is alleged to be a Communist. They found a list of Communist members, and it is expected that wholesale arrests may follow.—Reuter.

In addition to the brilliant eagle (mentioned above) he sank a 24-foot putt at the 18th, while Farrell's ball lay dead.

Hagen's Only Mistake.

Hagen's only mistake during the morning was that he missed a putt at the 11th. Charles Whitcombe's best effort against him was the halving of the last three holes in par figures.

Archie Compston played an improved game, and divided several birdies with his opponent, Burke. They halved the last four holes.

Hodson (who was put in the team after Duncan was dropped) held Shute to the 11th, where the game was all-square. Shute, however, staged a great finish, his last four holes reading 4,4,2,4, against Hodson's 5,4,3,5.

At the end of the morning rounds, the positions were:

Havers, 2 up.

Sarazen, 2 up.

Burke, 2 up.

Davies and Farrell, all square.

Mitchell, 1 up.

Shute, 3 up.

E. Whitcombe and Al Espinosa, all square.

Britons Crack Up.

After the strain of experiencing superb play against their merely good golf, the British team all cracked up in the afternoon, with the exception of two players. Charles Whitcombe against Hagen made an up-hill fight of it and gallantly pulled back Hagen to four up at the 13th. But Hagen's lead was too long, and he won by 4 and 3.

Joe Farrell who was beaten by Davies, struck a wild patch in the afternoon, taking fives on all the home-made holes, except one.

Wood played desperately against Havers, whose golf on the inward journey averaged fours for the six holes played.

After the match, Charles Whit-

"REBEL CHURCH" DISPUTE.

REV. SIMMONDS TO BE AD-MITTED TO ST. AIDAN'S.

A personal disagreement between the Archbishop of Canterbury and Dr. Barnes, the Bishop of Birmingham, which may have the gravest consequences to the Church of England, is disclosed in correspondence which has passed between Dr. Lang and Dr.
Barnes.

The Primate has informed the Bishop of Birmingham that he will admit the Rev. C. D. Simmonds to the living of St. Aidan's, Small Heath, Birmingham. This
the Bishop refused to do because Mr. Simmonds would not give him a written undertaking in the following words:

"In asking you to institute me
to the vicarage of St. Aidan's, Small Heath, I write to say that at your request I am willing in public worship to obey the regulations of the Prayer Book (or alternatively of any revised Prayer Book which may become lawful) and that I will not depart from the law as then set forth unless I have it from you in writing that you will raise no objection to action such as I may desire to take. I understand that you will not permit Reservation of the consecrated elements of the Holy Communion.

After the Bishop's refusal, High Court proceedings were taken,
which the Bishop of Birmingham did not attend. An Order was made against him, and, upon his disregarding its requirements, action was taken, with the Archbishop of Canterbury and Dr.
Barnes as respondents.

As a result of these proceedings,
a writ was granted requiring the Primate to license a fit person to the benefice.

"Very Distressing."

In his letter to the Bishop of Birmingham informing him of the step he proposes to take, the Primate writes: "You will, I am sure, believe me when I say that it is very distressing and indeed painful to me to be thus obliged to intervene in the administration of your Diocese. But I must not allow personal feelings to affect what seems to me to be my duty."
The Bishop of Birmingham, replying, writes:

"Unless by a more complete examination your Grace assures yourself that Mr. Simmonds will not adopt Reservation at St. Aidan's your present action will make it possible for the decision of Parliament to be overruled in any instance where the Bishop is not willing to bring a legal action against the clergyman whom your Grace
may admit."

ASSAULT ON TAXI DRIVER.

PORTUGUESE ORDERED TO PAY COMPENSATION.

LUGGAGE DISPUTE.

Two young Portuguese, A. J. Castro and G. Santos, appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning on a charge of assaulting a taxi-driver
at Happy Valley late last night.

Mr. F. H. Loseby appeared for the complainant and asked permission for the charge against Santos to be withdrawn.

Castro, in answer to the charge,
admitted the offence, but pleaded provocation. To show that he was not vindictive, he was prepared to pay the complainant compensation.

Mr. Loseby said the defendant had engaged the complainant's taxi and was driven to Happy Valley late last night. The complainant pulled up, on account of his light being faulty, a short distance before reaching the defendant's house.

Castro paid the fare and when the complainant was returning to the taxi he was struck a severe blow
by the defendant.

The defendant said that when the complainant had reached within fifteen yards of his house he pulled up and stopped on the opposite side of the road to the house. He (defendant) had always been driven to his door before and when spoken to the complainant replied that it was again the traffic regulations to stop on the side of the road. The driver was told that as the defendant had a lot of luggage, the taxi should be driven to the door as the baggage could not be deposited in the roadway. Defendant spoke to the complainant in a rough way and, possibly thinking that he would be struck, the driver picked up a spanner from the taxi.

Addressing the defendant he said
"Strike me!"

The defendant then informed the driver that it was not a question of striking him and proceeded to take his luggage from the taxi.

After paying the driver, the defendant asked him why he had been so cheeky and again, thinking that he was going to be struck, the complainant went to the taxi for his summer. He defied the defendant to hit him and it was then that the defendant struck the driver.

His Worship awarded the complainant $30 compensation and registered a conviction without further penalty.

FRENCH "RED" GIVEN STIFF SENTENCE.

banishes, who had just left Ducroux's office were taken into custody by Rai Bahadur Prithvi Chand, Chief Inspector of the Criminal Intelligence Department, who carried out further raids at Ceylang and Cairnhill Road areas.

Ample Funds.

In Ducroux's pockets were found a copy of a seditious publication and a diary containing addresses in Shanghai and Hongkong. It was stated in Court that these addresses had led to the arrest at those ports of "notorious Communists." That Ducroux had ample funds was shown by the fact that he had in his boarding house at Oxley Rise over $312,000 worth of travellers' cheques issued by the National City Bank of New York and further sums in other currency.

Immediately following the arrest of Ducroux, sixteen Chinese, including a young Cantonese girl of 19 and a Hupeh Chinese described as being a notorious Communist, were caught and a large printing outfit was found in a house in Sims Avenue where two of the accused were located.

The charge against the "comrade" of the Hupeh Chinese who was seen to visit Ducroux, was subsequently withdrawn and although he was designated as number three in the line of accused, he was taken out and is now being held for returning to the Colon after his banishment in 1929. Another of the prisoners dashed away while being led to the court and is still at large. An educated Indian whose name was said to have been mentioned in a letter found in the possession of a Chinese was also in the dock.

Mr. Daniel Kenny, Chief Court Inspector, conducted the case for the Crown and Ducroux was leavly represented by Mr. M. C.
Johannes. The Chinese were not represented by counsel. There was a crowded Court before the Singapore Criminal District
Judge, when Ducroux was sentenced.

All the accused were charged with assisting in the management of the Malayan Communist Party, an unlawful organisation for the spreading of subversive propaganda in this country. One of

WOMAN TEACHER CHARGED.

ALLEGED THEFT OF $150
IN PURSE.

HEARING COMMENCED.

Hearing of the case against a woman teacher, Chan Wai-nam, who was charged with having stolen a purse containing a $100
note, four $10 notes and two $5
notes from another woman, Li Shiu-wan, at No. 18, Jordan Road
on June 13, was begun before Mr.
Hamilton, at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

Mr. F. X. D'Almada, senr., appeared for the defendant.

The story for the prosecution was that the defendant called on the complainant at 18, Jordan Road, on the morning of June 13,
and had a conversation with her,
and also borrowed some money.
The complainant produced her purse, and, after lending the defendant the money, put the purse away in the presence of the defendant. They both then left the premises. The defendant, however, made an excuse and left. It was alleged that she returned to the premises to look for something and then again left. The complainant, when she returned in the evening, missed her purse.
She went to look for the defendant, but could not find her.
Subsequently the complainant received a letter which threw suspicion on the defendant, and
she gave the police information, which led to the arrest of the defendant.

After the evidence of the complainant had been taken, the hearing was adjourned.

The Hon. Treas. of the Hongkong Benevolent Society acknowledges with grateful thanks the receipt of $10 by registered post.

The important witnesses called was a young Singapore Malay, a former Communist who spoke of his association with the Hupeh Chinese and two notorious Java
"Reds," Ali Majid and Jamuludin
who were arrested by Rai Bahadur Prithvi Chand and banished.
